Driven — — — — to Exceed Expectations

Ferris Hills at West Lake has ample underground parking available to residents, but for those who no longer drive – and those who would rather not venture out in wintry conditions, for example – there are friendly drivers at the ready.

With two handicapped-accessible buses and a small van at their disposal, drivers Betty Sexton and Patti Schultz are busy each week with group outings to places like the Geva Theatre Center and Smith Opera House, as well as individual transports to appointments and other personal commitments.

With a background in both the medical field and aviation, Betty is a native of this area who lived in Texas for many years, returning to upstate New York because she missed the four seasons. Of her job, she says, “I love helping others. It truly warms my heart.”

Patti, who has spent most of her life

in Bristol, feels the same way. Her background is as an activity director in senior living settings and she officially retired two years ago but wanted to keep busy. “I’m a very social person and love to be on the go,” she says.

A third driver, Mary Kay Cooper, provides residents with rides to church services each weekend. Resident Services Manager Claire Watson says Mary Kay, Betty and Patti are all “amazing.”

“The love and compassion our drivers have for our residents is overwhelming and they are always looking out for them,” she says. “A last-minute trip, a door to be opened, a hat or a hug – our drivers have it all covered.”
