Meet Meghan Gravino!

Ferris Hills at West Lake is entering the new year with a new executive director.

Meghan Gravino – who also oversees our assisted living community of Clark Meadows - officially assumed her new role in late October.

Meghan grew up in Seneca Falls and is a graduate of SUNY Brockport. She earned her master's in social work via the Greater Rochester Collaborative program offered jointly by Brockport and Nazareth University. She is currently pursuing an advanced certification through D'Youville University in Buffalo, with anticipated completion in March of 2024.

She first joined our parent organization of UR Medicine Thompson Health as a medical social worker in the M.M. Ewing Continuing Care Center and in 2022 transitioned to its Assistant Administrator. "As noted when she received her 2018 Shining Star Award from Thompson, Meghan is knowledgeable, compassionate, and skilled at making connections. I know she will continue to shine in her new role," said Thompson Health President/CEO Michael F. Stapleton, Jr.

Meghan and her husband live in Williamson with their two young sons. In her free time, she loves to be with family and spend time outdoors. Also a sucker for a great romantic comedy movie, she considers herself very much a people person and says, "I love to surround myself with others and have a good laugh."

She is enthusiastic about building relationships with others and is eager to ensure the residents of Ferris Hills and Clark Meadows have a wonderful retirement experience. To schedule a tour with her, call (585) 393-0410.
